ABROAD.

The reputation of American Pianos is fast gaining ground, and no Boston pianos to state that the Lyon & Healy Pianos are not the best known in foreign lands. We are but lately in receipt of a very gratifying letter from a gentleman in England why her purchased one of them. It reads as follows:

"Foster Hall, Saddle Co., Eng., July 5, '82.

GENTS: The Lyon & Healy Piano you sent me has arrived in splendid condition, and I already find it quite a musical duet for my daughter and myself. It is my sincere pleasure to speak in the highest terms of the instrument, and I shall be glad to recommend it to my friends on all occasions. Yours respectfully,

Yesterday, June 4, the New York, Aug. 13, Special to The Tribune, A very distressing event took place on the island of Ischia, a well known summer resort on the northern shore of the bay of Naples, which was completely destroyed by an earthquake yesterday morning. It was entirely believed that the earthquake would prove dangerous. The inhabitants of the island, however, were not prepared for the terrible scenes which were witnessed. The earthquake was first felt about 6 o'clock in the morning. It began with a loud rumbling noise, which was followed by a violent shock, which caused the houses to tremble and totter. Many of the houses were completely destroyed, and the inhabitants were thrown into the streets in a state of terror. The earthquake was followed by a number of smaller shocks

DUBLIN, July 15.—The election of the Times candidate was received in our city amid a scene of excitement, which, for the time, threw into the shade the political history of the past. In a series of articles from former occasions, the Irish people, Protestant, which their cause have performed before, were a few of which have been elected Deputies to their colleagues. The success of Mr. Smith's candidature for Kingston has at present the Times, Tories, and Irish Parliamentary party under the leadership of Mr. Parnell, have all combined for the purpose of defeating the Conservative, who pretended to be a Liberal Union, all those parties are to be found in the ranks of the Conservative party, and the Irish Parliamentary party under Mr. Parnell, has

CABLE CHRONICLES.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—[Special Cable Dispatch to the Boston Globe.]—Exciting campaigns are carried over the proposed extension to the United States against British interests in American lands. The extension means long discussions of the subject. The excitement was started by the advice from New York giving the views of the American Protestant Episcopal Church Congress. These telegrams stated that the Congress had appointed secret committees, consisting of ten clergymen from each State, to meet and report their views and recommendations to the Congress. The suggestions to be made embrace all modes of opposition to the introduction of English ideas, to distribute them carefully, and to arrange an agitation against the policy of allowing aliens to become citizens of the United States. The Congress also recommended the establishment of a Church Congress in London, to be composed of delegates from the Episcopal Church in the United States, who should meet in London at the same time as the English Church Congress. PENSION FRAUDS.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—[Special.] Secretary Teller has received Andrew A. Freeman, a claim agent of this city, from practicing before the Interior Department. He makes the collection of dues in advance without an agreement on the part of the claimants who employ him. The evidence against him was quite voluminous, and the Secretary has concurred in the finding of the Commissioner of Pensions that Freeman is dishonest. The law denies him the right to stand before that office, but the address of many of his victims will be found in a letter following that of the Commissioner of Pensions, which is as follows:

The First Comptroller of the Treasury has decided that a claim agent who is guilty of fraud and misconduct is not entitled to compensation.

The letter of the Assistant Attorney-General, dated July 9, 1883, from Wilmarth, against Andrew A. Freeman, has been received.

A dispatch received at the Pension Office announces that the Grand Jurors have failed to find a bill of indictment against Freeman, and he is therefore discharged.

The First Comptroller of the Treasury has been requested to report to the Secretary of the Interior what, if any, action should be taken in the matter of the claim of Mrs. Sarah A. Hall, widow of Lieut. Hall, U. S. A.

The statement that the new Court of Claims has been appointed to try the Star-route cases is denied. The Court of Claims is a permanent tribunal, and consists of a chief justice and four associate justices, appointed by the President, by and with the consent of the Senate, for the purpose of adjudicating claims against the United States.

The Hon. John C. Rose, who has been appointed Solicitor of the Treasury, vice Maury, deceased, is a native of Mississippi, and was born in 1838. He graduated at the University of Virginia, and was admitted to the bar in 1859. He was a member of the Mississippi Secession Convention, and was elected to the Confederate Congress. He was also a member of the Confederate Provisional Congress, and was appointed Confederate Attorney-General. He was subsequently elected to the Confederate Congress, and was a member of that body when the war closed. He was arrested and confined in Fort Pulaski, and was released on parole. He was elected to the Legislature of Georgia, and was a member of the committee which framed the present Constitution of that State. He was elected to the United States Senate, but was not allowed to take his seat. He was subsequently elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat. He was a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, and was recommended by that committee for the office of Solicitor of the Treasury. He is a lawyer of high standing, and is considered well qualified for the office to which he has been appointed.

President Warren A. Kelly, of Manchester, and Nathan Morse, Esq., of Boston, and Mr. C. E. Leonhardt, of New York, the Commissioners appointed by the Secretary of the Interior to examine the Chicago Harbor, have made their report to the Secretary of the Treasury, and it has been received at the Treasury Department. The report recommends that the Chicago Harbor be improved by the construction of a breakwater, commencing at the foot of Randolph street, and extending in a northeasterly direction to the foot of Ohio street, and thence in a northerly direction to the foot of Chicago avenue, and that the Government purchase the Illinois Central Railroad Company's breakwater, and extend it to the foot of Chicago avenue. The report also recommends that the Government purchase the Illinois Central Railroad Company's dock, and that the Government dredge the harbor to a depth of twenty feet. The report also recommends that the Government purchase the Illinois Central Railroad Company's dock, and that the Government dredge the harbor to a depth of twenty feet.

THE LOCOMOTIVE BOARD.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—[Special.] The Locomotive Inspection Board has received the report of the Inspector-General to the Secretary of the Treasury, from which it appears that the Board has inspected 1,000 locomotives during the past year, and has found 1,000 locomotives in good condition. The Board has also inspected 1,000 locomotives during the past year, and has found 1,000 locomotives in good condition.

The Proposed New Aqueduct—Its Size, Capacity and Cost.

(New York Herald, Aug. 11.)—The Aqueduct Commissioners, at the head of which is Gen. Newton, instead of a committee to whom the new aqueduct, dam, and reservoirs for the city were entrusted, have decided to recommend the construction of a new aqueduct, dam, and reservoirs for the city. The new aqueduct will be built on the line of the present aqueduct, and will be of the same size and capacity as the present aqueduct. The new dam will be built on the site of the present dam, and will be of the same size and capacity as the present dam. STRUCK OIL.

Ohio Oilmen at Kenmore, North Hudson Struck a Rousing Gusher.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 11.—[Special.] The Oil City Derrick, a paper on the New York oil fields, says: Kenmore, Ohio, is the name of a village on the line of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad, about two miles west of Akron, in Summit County. It is also the name of a new oil field which has been developed in the past few months. The discovery of oil in this field was made by a well which was drilled on the farm of Mr. Kenmore, and which struck oil at a depth of 1,200 feet. The oil is of a very high grade, and is said to be of a very high quality. The oil is of a very high grade, and is said to be of a very high quality. LAKE BLUFF.

Somebody's Proceedings at the Camp-Meeting.

Although the genuine old-time revival services have not yet held the ground the Lake Bluff camp-meeting have been fairly begun in the work that is being accomplished, and the spiritual power in the meetings manifest. The Rev. Frank Sterling, who is associated with the business manager of the Methodist publishing house in this city, is expected to arrive on the ground. He will take charge of the meetings. He will also be assisted by the Rev. [illegible] Hall, who has been successful in conducting revival meetings in other parts of the country. The meetings will be held in the tabernacle, which is capable of seating about 2,000 persons. The Rev. MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 7.—[Special Correspondence.]—It shall be called Mont Royal, for, by my faith, it is a lovely mountain," said an Ancient Carter was the gallant soldier, and the city—bearing in Cartier's own mind—that grew up at last was to immortalize, for the blessing of latter visitors to world-famous capes of the Frozen colony of the government district, for the Seaside, the City, and the English have counted of that, and it stands crowned and green-hill, its circle every Tuesday, but its streets as complete as Seven stories and English the corrective was built it.

This, architecturally and commercially, is the terror of the habitues; the magnificent mount of the churches; the cathedrals of the seminary; the convent of the Priests Seminary; the palaces to the streets of cottage and villas and cows and children, of to the fields of their colors; the number of convents and monasteries—four each. To the entrance of the eyes of Paris, and the Montreal the spiritual head—which the Bon Ton Dame and the Belgian Sacrament against priest is humbly as a "Leader of Souls."

The first glimpse of the city was idyllic. The evening was of perfect character; the sun was coquetting below the hills; a cooling breeze sprang to the west; the Lachine Rapids foamed and roared before us; and amidst the harbor, with its barges and sail, discreetly floated like a fairy garden in the distance, and the spires of Notre Dame were lost in hazy mystery.

[San Savoy Press.]—The bishops of the district in the West Land of a new version of the book of Deuteronomy, as given in a cable dispatch from London, will excite the keenest interest among Hebrew scholars throughout the land, and will, when Hebrew scholars have been consulted by mail, furnish material for fervent discussions in the religious press. The statement bears upon its face a plausible character, which will undoubtedly lead many unlearned persons to suppose it an honest statement, and there will undoubtedly be a very strong tendency to accept it as truth; but those who are familiar with the subject will at once see that it is false. There are certain peculiarities which mark the genuine Hebrew text, and which are entirely wanting in the two manuscripts which have been received by cable from London. While the version in many papers is described as "written in Chaldaic characters" and gives the date as the ninth century B. C., the correspondent of the Sun Lake Sunday-school Union in London, and confirms in fact a "Hebrew version," and confirms in fact to the seventh century B. C.

It was of course to be expected that the translation in question is not properly a "Mosaic version." The people of Moab did not speak Aramaic, but Chemosh, as is shown in numerous passages of the Old Testament and in the "Moabite stone" itself. It is to the last degree improbable that the Moabites should have had an independent version of Deuteronomy. The data ascribed to the cuneiform record is unsupported by any evidence that the text of Deuteronomy as now known was established as a law of the well-established conclusion of modern criticism that the book of Deuteronomy as now known was first brought to light during the reign of King Josiah (B. C. 641). The probability is that the newly-found manuscript does not in fact claim to belong to the book of Deuteronomy, and it is very certain that there is no authorizing fact. It may, on account of peculiar date of authorship, and date of writing. As to the Moabite language, it is well enough established that its features were essentially the Phoenician, and the Aramaic or a dialect of the same.

The new version, however, is not without interest, and contains many variations from the authorized text of Deuteronomy, which will undoubtedly be subjected to a severe criticism. The most striking feature of the newly-found manuscript is the fact that it omits the ten commandments as they are now known, and gives them in the form [illegible]. The first commandment, as given in the new version, reads: "Only on the Lord-day of assembling be wise and only refrain from anything but from of habit of eyes and duties, from being with business, but to give glory to the [illegible]." In the remainder of reports to abstain from [illegible] on the Lord-day was to prohibit that a [illegible] for [illegible] of the house which [illegible] might to distinguish the [illegible] holy. We have consequently not noble deeds of [illegible] which [illegible] and [illegible] on [illegible] and it possible that in the [illegible] we may have the exactly simple spirit of the early Christians.
